Eisenhower, Others, Give Views On Censorship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke urged Tuesday that military leaders be encouraged to tell their troops and the public about the menace of communism, with a minimum of censorship.

News In Brief

Terrorists Lash Algerian Cities

ALGIERS (AP) — Antigovernment terrorists lashed Algeria's major cities with submachine, bomb and pistol attacks Tuesday. Officials counted 14 persons killed — 12 Europeans and 2 Moslems — and 31 injured in 20 different attacks in the seething North African territory.

French authorities reported a manpower shortage was holding up new controls aimed at cutting down bloodshed and violence between Europeans opposed to Algerian independence and Moslems who expect to get it soon.

Major Airlines Plan Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines proposed Tuesday to merge into a giant system that would carry about 35 per cent of the nation's long-distance domestic air passenger traffic.

The combined operations, to be known as American Airlines, would be by far the country's largest, knocking United Air Lines from first position.

The merger proposal reflected the growing financial distress throughout American public transportation.

Pennsy Asks For Strike Block

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad, claiming a threatened Feb. 4 strike already is costing it $500,000 a day in lost business, Tuesday asked U. S. District Court to block the scheduled walkout of 10,000 Transport Workers Union members.

The PRR said the strike, if it occurs, would result in an actual $2 million a day loss. In its injunction petition it demanded the TWU pay the current strike threat losses of $500,000 daily.

Mail Hike Gets House Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A postal rate bill that would raise the cost of first class letter mail from four cents to five cents won House approval Tuesday. A technically blocked final action.

Republicans protested that the new Democratic leadership had resorted to a gag rule in an effort to pass the bill.

As it emerged from the day-long session, the bill would add a penny to the cost of air mail as well as first class letters — air mail now is seven cents — and would increase rates for mailing newspapers, magazines and advertising circulars.

DuPont Stock Gets Tax Preak

WASHINGTON (AP)—After a week of debate and months of behind-the-scenes maneuvering, the Senate passed and sent to the White House Tuesday the Du Pont tax relief bill.

It would more than halve the federal taxes Du Pont stockholders would have to pay if they receive General Motors stock under a Du Pont plan to comply with a Supreme Court antitrust order to get rid of its GM stock.

Senate inquiry into restraints imposed on what men in the armed forces say.

No Censorship

Eisenhower, in a statement submitted to a Senate investigating subcommittee, said he was inclined now to feel that the top officials should not be compelled to submit their speeches to censorship, for both security and content, as has been the rule for several administrations, including his own.

Instead, he suggested, such officials—whether military or civilian—should voluntarily coordinate their public statements when in doubt, "so as to protect the nation, their services and themselves."

Burke Testified

Burke, former chief of naval operations who testified personally, did not go quite as far as Eisenhower along this line. He said freedom of speech "functions best when the individual himself is held responsible for what he says."

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the subcommittee, read Eisenhower's statement but didn't go along with the former president's proposal. After the hearing recessed for the day, Stennis told newsmen: "I think there has to be some kind of censorship or policy review."

Too Busy To Check

Stennis said the secretary of defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff were too busy to be able to doublecheck all speeches for policy. But he added that any such screening should be "on a very high level" with a quick appeal possible, even to the president personally.

The long-heralded inquiry is being held as a result of repeated charges by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a member of the subcommittee, that the Pentagon has systematically muzzled anti-Communist statements by military officials.

The opening session before a jammed crowd in the big Senate caucus room was relatively brief because of a press of business on the Senate floor. It consisted of Burke's reading his statement and Stennis' reading statements by Eisenhower and by former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett.

Lovett, a Republican who served in the Truman administration, cautioned against speech-making by military men that might involve them in politics.

Eisenhower, in suggesting a voluntary system of censorship for high officials, declared: "We are smothering the concept of personal responsibility under the practice of heavy-handed and unjustified staff supervision."

"I say let the military speak, always under properly established policies and the general—not petty—supervision of their superiors."

Eisenhower said, "Telling the stark truth about communism is the best way to make our own citizenry and other people appreciate the blessing of liberty."

Both Burke and Eisenhower said the need for anti-Communist education in the armed services was demonstrated in Korea. There, the admiral said, the enemy had "seemingly incredible success in eroding the will of our men captured."

Astronaut And Equipment Reported Set For Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., and his repaired space capsule were both reported fit Tuesday, ready for a flight around the world Saturday.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said officially that Glenn had given his malfunctioning space craft an hour-long check.

The NASA spokesman did not give the results of the check, but indicated that they were still aiming for a Saturday launch.

A close source to the space program said that Glenn found all systems inside his space cabin working perfectly and all cabin lights showing green—"go."

Glenn's planned flight three times around the world through space was postponed from Wednesday to Saturday by the malfunctioning of an oxygen supply system.

A source close to the space operations here said the oxygen system's malfunctioning valves and leaking ducts had now been replaced.

The astronaut, the source continued, completed what he hopes will be his last dry-run of flight procedure, too, and will make the last preflight check for himself Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the workaday business of testing military missiles resumed—with not much more luck than has been encountered previously with Glenn's proposed launch.

At 12:05 p.m., the Navy fired a Polaris missile into a bright blue sky to test a new guidance system.

The solid-fuel missile arched high over the Atlantic, but a malfunction in the second stage stopped the flight.

The moon-shot known as Ranger 3, which was to have taken pictures of the moon and to have placed an instrument package on its surface, had to be postponed Monday until Friday after a fueling mishap.

Friday or Saturday are the last days in the present time-phase of the moon in which the Ranger can be launched. If it fails to go then, it will have to be carried over until about Feb. 20.

The only thing still on schedule is the so-called five-in-one shot due for early Wednesday.

With this shot, the Navy, Army and Air Force will attempt to put five small satellites into orbit with one missile.

Thirteen months ago King Mahendra suddenly ousted the country's first elected premier, B. P. Koirala, suspended the constitution and dissolved Parliament. He has been exercising personal rule since.

He charged that Koirala was seeking to overthrow the monarchy and wanted to merge the tiny kingdom of eight-million people with a neighbor either to the north or south. To the north, Red China occupies Tibet. To the south is India.

Dear Abby

There's A Reason Why!

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what kind of mother I am. While my friends and neighbors are bragging about their children, I have to stand by and keep my mouth shut. The reason is, I can't think of anything good to say about mine. They are miserable, selfish, disagreeable brats. I love my children but let's face it, they are monsters. I have tried every kind of punishment in the book and so has my husband, so it isn't that we haven't tried to teach and train them. All we can look forward to is increasing the population of juvenile delinquents. Am I the only mother in this boat?

WISH I'D STAYED SINGLE
Dear Abby: Your "miserable, selfish, disagreeable brats" were not that way at birth. You have failed somehow as parents. Why not ask your local Child Guidance Clinic for some help?

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I am just plain stupid, but I would like to know why teen-aged girls need to carry around great big purses that weigh around ten pounds apiece.

TEEN-AGED BOY
Dear Abby, Because they want to have a comb, hairbrush, compact, at least a dozen lipsticks, eyebrow pencil, eye liner, mirror, wallet, bobby pins, sunglasses, chewing gum, safety pins, cough drops, pocket dictionary, needle thread, scissors, glue, tape, autograph book, fountain pen, ink, pencil, nail polish, hair spray, a pack of old love letters with them at all times.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my husband bought me an electric sewing machine I have been a free sewing service for his entire family. Right now I have ten pairs of boys' jeans on my table with instructions to "taper the legs." They don't even put a pin in them to show me how much. And the boys refuse to come over to try them on. My blood pressure is high to begin with, and this will put me in my grave. How can I handle this without losing their friendship?

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Dear Abby, Don't worry about losing the friendship of such free-loaders. Tell them your patience is hanging by a thread and either they should send the boys over for fittings or go elsewhere and pay for alterations.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Fostering Youth

In a day and age when our nation and the entire world is acutely concerned with youth problems and the proper training of our young people in becoming leaders, the YMCA stands as a beacon on a troubled sea. For many young people it is a haven of refuge from ulterior forces.

This week has been designated nationally as a time when emphasis will be placed on the constructive training given our youth by this non-sectarian organization dedicated to making better citizens for the world of tomorrow. In our own community, this week of emphasis falls in the middle of the local drive for membership and resultant contributions.

In our own area, the modern building down on Main Street has been the base of operations for this youth program, and it is one of the few places which is solely dedicated to coping with the problems of today's young people. Whether we realize it or not, these junior citizens have an inherent desire to be upright and outstanding members of their community. However, they have their problems just the same as grown-ups do.

The YMCA program gives young people the opportunity to realize their dreams and ideals by furnishing them the surroundings for mixing with others of their same age and temperament, and doing it in a manner that will bring out the best that is in them.

We do not have to eulogize the work of the YMCA editorially. Its accomplishments are known to every thinking citizen who builds for a better tomorrow. What we feel we must do, however, is to remind people that the program is not possible without adequate finances. The program is all-important and should receive the unstinted support of all of us.

If you have not already done so, get in on the YMCA membership drive, and contribute your mite to those who follow us.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Opportunity For Training

More State Policemen for highway safety and general enforcement, due in the next few years as the 200-man increase becomes effective, will mean a wider range of police supervision in most areas. But it is especially worthy of note that although the police training program will be jammed by regular trainees, the department has added a new program to make its training schedule available to municipal police.

Training in the Hershey police academy will have to be confined to the state police so that the usual course for municipal police will be omitted there temporarily. But local peace officers will continue to get an opportunity at various barracks for exposure to the state police course in investigation, personal efficiency in enforcement, and legal training at the police level.

The move from "school" to an on-the-job program should be beneficial for its practical advantages. Pennsylvania State Police training has proved by performance over the years that it is the best to be had. The full-time school for municipal police will be resumed at Hershey as soon as there is room.

Expansion of a strong single standard of police training for all law enforcement officers should be of increasing value as traffic and crime problems increase and general security may make new demands.

The Tariff

President Kennedy's proposal to reduce the tariff could eliminate certain industries altogether. Some American companies, which have exported huge sums to Common Market countries, or Great Britain or Canada, for the building of industries there would benefit by exporting their products from those countries to the United States.

It would appear that they are competing with themselves. Actually, they are not competing with themselves because while we speak of exporting capital, what has been exported are jobs and what is imported without tariff protection is goods manufactured by cheaper labor costs, cheaper tax costs and even cheaper raw material costs.

How can American jobs be safeguarded under such conditions? There can be no question but that President Kennedy seeks to build up the economy of Western Europe as an offset to the building up of the economy of the Soviet Union.

But while that is being done, what becomes of the American would inevitably be shut tight within the United States because they have no export market and cannot compete in the American market unless protected.

We face here a dichotomy which is not answered by a rule of political necessity. It is necessary to find a solution which answers both problems; namely, 1. How to continue to build West European and Japan's industries so that the United States has effective allies, and 2. How to sustain jobs in the United States so that the American worker is protected.

In any discussion of the tariff, Americans are accustomed to speak of protecting infant industries. But the industries are no longer infants. What we are dealing with today is the protection of jobs, with the social problem of maintaining a uniform standard of life, with the avoidance of peaks and valleys of production so that there will be no depressions.

To achieve this constructively, we must be able to maintain an export ratio which will keep our people at work or we must stimulate the domestic consumption of goods so that we will keep our people at work. Unemployment is socially intolerable. Equally, the reduction of our standard of life is intolerable.

We face therefore a very serious social problem which cannot be solved by politics alone. This problem requires an immediate acknowledgement that the center of American domestic and international politics depends upon the availability of jobs in the United States and the value of the money that those jobs bring to each family.

If the family is accepted as the unit for consideration, it is impossible to tolerate unemployment for any reason whatsoever. The concentration of planning must be focussed on jobs.

Unemployment is not likely to produce a revolution in the United States such as a famine produces in an Asiatic country. The reason is that in the United States we can eat even if we are forced to barter food for manufactured goods or if we become dependent upon the state.

But a depression would force upon our people price controls and price controls eventually mean controls of every economic media. We have had enough experience with that to know that it results in social unrest and unnecessary changes.

How long such controls can be exercised without an unfavorable concentration of power, no one can estimate. A concentration of power stimulates political strife.

Of course, political changes are moving so rapidly that much happens while one discusses what might happen. This swift change is frightening and it has the curious effect of producing a political apathy which tends to fool the politician that the public is satisfied with his conduct.

But is it a political apathy or is it a waiting period for a new leadership? This too needs to be studied, for much of President Kennedy's strength comes from the inherent weakness of the Republican Party which has no leadership, and no program. Should the Republicans come to life, the Democrats might be shocked by an exhibition of their own weakness.

It is possible that it is not the people who are apathetic as much as it is that all leadership has disappeared except that of President Kennedy, which means that in a two party country there is only one party.

When there is only one side to take, the people often take no sides. For President Kennedy it would be better if the Republicans had something to say and someone to say it.

The Pennsylvania Story

School District Changes Difficult

Harrisburg — A number of lawmakers, we have discovered, were not fully aware of the "fine print" contained in the controversial school reorganization law enacted by the 1961 session of the Legislature.

We stumbled across this quite by accident — the result of a query by a schoolman as to whether his county does or does not come under the 1961 School District Reorganization Act.

The question in simplified form was simply whether seventh and eighth class counties must comply with the provisions of the act which fundamentally and among its most publicized points requires establishment of school districts throughout the state with 4000-pupil minimums, or 2500 in special cases if approved by the State Council of Education.

Our off-the-cuff answer to the

Mirror of Time

—by J. D. Shafer

10 Years Ago

J. Albert Groner was elected president of Monroe County Community Chest.

Floyd Butz, Monroe County recorder and recorder rejected the job of State Tax Collector. He felt it would cost him too much money to collect the tax and the percentage was not enough to cover expenses.

Arthur Green, Palmerton RD 2, was seriously injured when his car slid off Route 12, near Kunkletown, and ended up in a creek on its roof.

Walter S. Peeney was named chairman of the Monroe County Community Chest Drive.

20 Years Ago

A construction worker on a bridge on Route 402, near Marshall Creek, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital in serious condition. He had a brain concussion, laceration to the lower lip, loss of some teeth, a puncture wound in the right leg and a broken nose.

Howard W. Butts of East Stroudsburg, died as he was being admitted to the Monroe County Hospital. He had fallen nine feet onto a concrete floor in H. B. Marsh & Sons Foundry.

Stroudsburg firemen were summoned to the Pocono Metal Co. Plant. Firemen made a fast stop and prevented what could have been a serious and costly fire. Damage was estimated by firemen as slight.

Kelper's Laundry advertised a 10 cent sale. The firm would dry clean two garments at a cost of 10 cents more than the cost of cleaning one garment.

inquiring schoolman was that seventh and eighth class counties (the two smallest classes of counties populationwise — there are 15 of them) were fundamentally excluded from provisions of the reorganization act.

Would we check it through? We did.

We found that the act does not apply in the case of school districts in seventh and eighth class counties — only insofar as the minimum number of pupils required for the new districts is concerned.

In other words, seventh and eighth class counties do not have to combine with adjoining districts to make up the 4000 2500 pupil minimum.

But we also discovered that - yes - seventh and eighth class counties do have to comply with other provisions of the act, that is, submit to the State Department of Public Instruction a county "reorganization" plan and form a single district.

As a point of curiosity, the other day we checked the point with several lawmakers on Capitol Hill — and we were amazed by the number of lawmakers themselves who assumed school districts in seventh and eighth class counties were indeed "exempt" from complying with provisions of Act 561.

It seems that the whole thing developed during the past session when in the heat of battle, as administration lawmakers fought staunchly to have the legislation enacted as one of the "pets" of the Lawrence Administration, many a rural (seventh and eighth class counties in particular) lawmaker objected strongly to the requirement that such small counties be made to come under the provision of the pupil minimum — which obviously would mean going outside county lines.

As a point of persuasion it was agreed that seventh and eighth class counties would be exempt from complying with these provisions.

This word was kept — the counties in an amendment to the original bill were excluded.

The joker however lies in the fact that while they were "excluded" from the pupil minimum requirement — they were not exempted from the actual administrative unit reorganization provision.

Like other counties, these reorganization plans must be submitted by the county board of school directors for state approval no later than January 1, 1963. And — as in the case of other counties, if the county boards don't act, the State Council of Education will do the job for them.

In a nutshell then, each seventh and eighth class county after all must resolve itself into a single administrative unit.

The 1963 legislative session should prove most interesting indeed!

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

The other day our hard-working State Senate passed a resolution, praising Penn State University quarterback, Gale Gale, for his efforts on the gridiron this past fall. The resolution also had the typical political superlatives about Hall's hometown of Williamsburg.

Endorsed by more than a dozen senators the official record now will note that Gale had to beat out quite a few old-time Williamsburg area athletes before winning the coveted solon award—best athletic figure of them all.

Now we have no axe to grind against Hall, Penn State or its alumni. It so happens that Gale unknowingly beat out thousands or more quarterbacks in the state scholastic and collegiate ranks.

This doesn't mean a thing either because we doubt if the senators or House members would have had the time to write up and pass a resolution on each signal-caller.

The crux of the situation is that dedicated men to better government wasted time and the taxpayers money to adopt this important resolution.

It seems odd, though to hear of a sports lauding resolution when solons keep peppering newsmen, broadcasters and video announcers with their continual gripe, "there's not enough time to complete all our work."

The solons are so right. There's just not enough time when seconds and minutes mount proposing idiotic motions on the "great" efforts of Squeedunk High, Razzle Dazzle Prep, Pro-Type University, Snake Hips Rattler, Fireball M-1 and One-Punch Cauliflower Ears.

No one likes sports any better than yours truly. But there is a time and place for them. And it's not in the solemn chambers of the State House or Senate.

With our state government becoming more and more complex each day our elected officials would do well to attempt to find the answer to lowering taxes; protection for the small businessman; a wage scale to coincide with cost of living, etc.

Certainly adopting resolutions lauding sports teams and individuals has its place. But it should only be by the trustees of a university; school boards; and clubs associated with such teams and athletes.

It's okay to use the halls of the Senate and House for cheerleading. But let's leave the solons' chambers for constructive action on a sound and economical government for the people.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington—George Kennan, U.S. Ambassador to Yugoslavia, is recommending that the U.S. adopt a "hands off" policy in Communist Albania's bitter quarrel with the Soviet Union.

He favors staying completely out of the Communist camp's explosive feud on the ground that a U.S. diplomatic fishing expedition into the troubled Albanian waters would greatly damage U.S. relations with Communist Yugoslavia.

Kennan describes these relations as "good" despite the growing number of anti-Yugoslavia incidents in this country since it became known that the

'Hands Off' Urged In Kremlin-Albania Break

U.S. was still selling jet planes to Communist dictator Tito's forces.

However, the controversial expert on Communist machinations warns that Tito will not tolerate any attempt by the U.S., or any other Western nation, to use the Kremlin-Tirana break as an opening to pry Albania from the Communist orbit.

That's the sensational report Ambassador Kennan gave when he testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week. Briefing the senators in private on "U.S.-Yugoslavia relations," Kennan forecast the coming Balkan intrigue, saying: "Tito is trying his best to knock off the Hoxha regime in Albania by using covert operations within the Communist party there. If these internal subversion efforts fail, he will resort to overt military action in the spring."

It is Kennan's estimate that Tito's military advisers, after first considering a lightning attack, ruled out an across-the-border invasion until spring because adverse weather conditions make it impossible for their U.S.-equipped armies to launch a successful "blitzkrieg."

"Despite his determination to 'liberate' Albania from its stinking, Stalinist, pro-Red China dictator (Enver) Hoxha," said Kennan, "Tito is not going to risk his image as a growing independent Communist power by getting bogged down in the mud."

Mrs. M. D. (Calif.) Mine went up in smoke when we moved away from the sooty city.

Mrs. N. B. (Maine) Mine stopped when the doctor stopped my sinus drip.

Mrs. A. V. (Minn.) To All: Because psoriasis disappears and returns so often, you can never be sure that the rash wasn't about to fade!

How about your other psoriasis sufferers? Any cures? Make Them Grow? Dear Doctor: Will that new growth hormone be able to make my children taller?

Mrs. B. W. (Ill.) Dear Mrs. W.: Only if they lack growth hormone. Otherwise, it can't stretch anyone into a bean pole.

Most youngsters have more than enough growth hormone—if their bodies wanted to grow tall!

Might Be Anemic Dear Doctor: Mrs. B.'s craving for ice cubes might mean anemia. Whenever my blood thins out, I munch ice cubes faster than the refrigerator makes them.

My doctor—a specialist in blood diseases—can't explain why.

Overweight Youngster Dear Doctor: Is it good or bad for a child to be 40 or 50 pounds overweight?

Mrs. A. C. (N. Y.) Dear Mrs. C.: Bad! Would you like to carry around a 40 or 50 pound pack? Think of a little child totting all this!

Heavy children are rarely happy, and unhappy children overeat. Ask your doctor about the cause and cure before the problem mounts into many more pounds!

New Computer Center Is Unveiled To Area Newsmen

MORE than 150 new radio and television men were present last night at the Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's home office, Allentown, to witness the unveiling of the firm's newly installed computer center.

Following a dinner and a movie on how the computer was constructed the newsmen toured the center where employees of PP & L explained the operation.

The process begins with the reading of your meter. Special sheets are used to record the customer's electric use. The meter reader does not write down the actual numbers that show in your meter; he makes simple pencil marks in squares that represent the right numbers.

With the meter reading completed, the district offices return the sheets on a prearranged schedule to the computer center and the processing of your electric service bill begins. The meter reading sheets are first run through a "scanner" or, more technically, the IBM 1418 Optical Character Reader.

Stroudsburg Granite Co.

Truman Burnett, Owner
Main St. at Dreher Ave. HA 1-8091

This machine actually "reads" the meter reader's marks and transforms them into electrical impulses. These impulses are transmitted to a small computer, which records them on tape. These two machines work together like the human eye and brain. One sees and the other stores the information in its "memory." Incidentally, PP & L uses four of the smaller, or satellite computers.

After the meter reading information is recorded on tape, it is sent to the large IBM 7070 computer.

The 7070 is the main computer and actually computes the customer's bill. It has been programmed (instructed) in advance as to what steps it must take to perform its billfiguring task. It receives all its information from tapes. From the tape containing the meter reader's information, it gets current data. From another tape, it gets background information on the customer's account so that it can make allowances for all variables, including different rates, fractional periods of service, unpaid balances, sales tax and many other factors affecting the final total of the bill. Throughout the operation, the computer makes checks to determine if any necessary information is missing, or whether there are conditions that would indicate need for a special review of the bill prior to forwarding it to the customer.

The operator of the 7070 gives the machine its instructions. It then completes the necessary arithmetic and determines how much each customer's bill is for the kilowatt-hours used. The answer is in the form of electronic impulses written on reels of magnetic tape. These reels are read into the high-speed printer which transforms the impulses into printed matter on a standard bill form. From the printer, the bill forms are sent to the auxiliary equipment room where they are separated, folded and inserted into envelopes for mailing to the customer.

PP & L can process 22,000 bills a day in its new center.

Fire Endangers Phila. Landmarks

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A fire in the heart of old Philadelphia, site of many historic Colonial shrines, wrecked a five-story industrial building before dawn Tuesday.

Torch-like flames lit up the sky as tons of combustible merchandise—lamps, shoes, hats, clothing—fed the fire. Explosions on various floors, apparently resulting from the tremendous heat, threw showers of glass, bricks, wood and metal from the burning building.

Four firemen were injured. Sparks and embers set numerous blazes, all quickly extinguished, in window frames and roofs of buildings for blocks around.

Christ Church and Betsy Ross House were among historic structures threatened during the two-hour battle by firemen. Independence Hall, home of the Liberty Bell, is about five blocks away.

More than 250 men and 50 pieces were summoned by eight alarms.

Fire Marshal William Connolly said his office would seek to determine the cause. There was no estimate of damage.

House Speaker To Donate $1,000

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Speaker H. G. Andrews said yesterday he intends to donate his $1,000 extra compensation for the special legislative session to three liberal arts colleges chosen by lot.

The speaker, and the Senate president pro tempore, are the only legislators to draw extra pay for the special session. The other members will have to get along on their regular $5,000 annual salary and $3,000 annual expense account.

Andrews asked House members to submit the names of liberal arts colleges in their districts that they feel would be entitled to a share of his $1,000. When the names are in, he said, he will appoint a committee to draw three names out of the hat to split the money.

Sen. Anthony J. DiSilvestro, Senate president pro tempore, said he will give his $1,000 to charity or for some worthy educational purpose.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

If it had been the setting for a play, you'd never believe it: a whole roomful of women sitting on the floor cutting carefully measured strips of green organdy and talking about murder.

Even when you know what it's all about, it seems highly unlikely. To explain it gets even more involved. Even about the green organdy. The four-inch strips will be rolled and made into leis, which in itself is an anachronism in the Poconos in the dead of winter, unless you explain further that it was the hula group preparing for their March huan.

And to explain the hula group would take a chapter in itself. But even more baffling than the characters is their conversation. Nobody really believes that it happened. Oh, things like that happen in New York or Chicago or San Francisco or in towns far away but not here and not to people you know, or even who know people you know.

The same thing was going on all over town: every casual conversation was being analyzed, every distant glimpse recalled, each incident stretched out, turned, told and retold. And it still didn't seem real.

Not really real. But real enough so that women living alone sought refuge with friends for the night. That doors which were never locked before squeak as the key is turned. That bolts are being added and a general sense of unease pervaded the community.

'Mostly we go around insulated from fear by the feeling that accidents, crimes of violence, and being struck by lightning are things that happen to faceless people who have a name in the newspaper but otherwise are unknown.

To have that insulation stripped away is to leave us all shivering and vulnerable to all sorts of alarms and rumors. In a crowd, there is a certain horror fascination about it that draws the conversation as an aching tooth draws the exploring tongue. But alone, only the horror remains in glimpsing the miseries the human mind can invent for itself.

Virtue More Than Its Own Reward

Stroud Union High School students swept the slate clean of prizes in one class at the State Farm Show. Five girls entered clothing; there were five prizes offered; and the local girls took them all.

The class accepted the offer of material made by Ernest H. Wyckoff to anyone wishing to make clothing for the Child Welfare Committee for distribution to the needy.

The care they took on their work of love is evident in the prizes those garments won. Besides the prizewinners listed above others of the class who made dresses for the Child Welfare Clothing Club were Dorothy Tucker, Marsha Miller, Lawan Lentz, Dorothy Kresge, Carol Van Why, Patricia Pugh and Faye Vaughn.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"the family store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Some days it is difficult to pin one's thoughts down and put them in writing . . . but today it is almost impossible to even light upon one's chair and stay there. It is incredible when tragedy rocks one's own town or one's very own neighborhood, touching the lives of people everyone knows and likes. The gray, sullen skies of this gloomy Monday upon which I write do absolutely nothing to ease the tension.

Just a few moments ago, I toured the store looking for something to brighten my spirits. The nearest I came to it, was to find a newly arrived toy known as Willie, the Missile Man in our Toy store. Willie is a cross-eyed, smiling little fellow of plastic who clings to a big white ball marked Canaveral. When one pulls a loop at the side of the ball and places Willie flat against a wall, he begins to climb toward outer space.

He's a cute trick for only 77c, a regular 1.00 value . . . but I do hope when our astronaut sets forth on his orbiting mission he'll travel a bit faster.

Color can make one feel better too, so I've been feasting my eyes. In Walter Wyckoff's floor covering department I discovered an absolutely breathtaking silken-soft sculptured rug of brilliant Shocking Pink. There were other colors too, mostly pastel, but oh, how I love anything so vibrant as this! These rugs, incidentally, are easily laundered in the washing machine; are non-skid for safety, and are shrinkproof. "Accent and area rugs" they are called . . . and they are real exclamation points of furry splendor.

Colorful too, is the display of tiny Decorator Pillows on our main staircase. In the past, I have disliked these tiny pillows that are too small for comfort but large enough to underscore a color scheme. En masse they are quite delightful, and our pretty arrangement combines one gay rectangle of stripes in Purple, deep Turquoise and Electric Blue, with larger circles and rectangles of solid Blue, Orchid, and Raspberry. Quite a rainbow, painted with a heavy hand.

Colors too . . . mostly deep rose and saucy red . . . add eye appeal to our candy department as we prepare for Valentine's Day. Some of the heart-shaped boxes are of cardboard; others of satin. One beauty, at 5.75 is filled with Russell Stover candy, which is the most delectable way in the world to tell a woman you love her. And one saucy Valentine card in the adjacent Cardcade whispers tenderly, "I know your love is not for sale . . . but could I interest you in a long term lease arrangement?"

Valentine-ish are the new Coty packages being displayed with bold, throbbing hearts in our Cosmetic department. Even the name of the fragrance speaks of love! There is L'aimant dusting powder at 2.00 . . . dusting powder with parfum at 4.50 . . . eau de toilette at 2.00 and 3.50 . . . and mist at 2.50.

Another thing that might change my mood would be music . . . but we must wait until 3 o'clock Sunday, January 28, to enjoy another of the splendid concerts of the Tulsa University Choir at East Stroudsburg High School. This is being sponsored by the Varsity E Club to swell the scholarship fund established by the late, beloved Tom Waring . . . and Blanche Mackey is selling tickets here at the store. Let's all go, shall we?

Pocono Dumps Cavaliers For 8th Win

Cards Avenge Last Week's 51-48 Defeat

By CURT PRINS
Sports Editor
POCONO Mountain High School avenged a week-old loss Tuesday night, with a 57-46 victory over East Stroudsburg on the loser's gym.

Some 6,000 fans, the largest crowd to watch a basketball game in the new Cavalier gym, saw the powerful Cardinals jump to an early lead and stay on top throughout the game. East Stroudsburg never led and forced only one tie, a 22 score with only 40 seconds gone in the game.

The victory keeps coach Harry Wertheimer's Cards on top of the Pocono-Slate Belt League and drops the Cavaliers to third place, behind Stroud Union.

It was the eighth seasonal win against three losses for Pocono, while East Stroudsburg is 4-6.

Blow Lead
When the two teams met last Tuesday at Swiftwater, Pocono blew a 17-point lead and lost in overtime 51-48. The Cards did have two big leads cut into sharply but East Stroudsburg was never able to get closer than eight points in the second half.

The Cards' biggest lead, a 30-point spread, came with 2:05 left in the third period. The 29 point bulge lasted only briefly and in the next 1:45, the Cavaliers cut the margin to 12 points. But then the Cards called for a time out to cool off the Cavs and in the final 50 seconds of the period, Pocono tacked on five points, to lead 47-31 at the end of the quarter.

With 3:20 left in the game, East Stroudsburg trimmed the margin to eight but again a Pocono time out simmered down the Cavaliers output.

Norb Ryan and Ed Luck were the high scorers for Pocono. Ryan had 17 points and Luck had a point more.

Wescott High
Don Wescott led East Stroudsburg with 15 points, while George Hack managed eight.

Hack and Jack Van Horn, who ended with seven points, did not play in the first quarter. The lead the Cavaliers in scoring.

Van Horn injured his right thigh in a recent skating accident and Hack missed several practice sessions because he was competing in a band festival.

The Cavaliers all but shot themselves out of the game in the first half. East Stroudsburg had only seven points in both the first and second quarters as Pocono's 2-1-2 zone defense limited the Cavaliers to mainly outside shots.

Control Boards
Pocono controlled both backboards and in the second period limited the Cavaliers to only three rebounds. Norb Ryan, his twin John and Luck did most of the Pocono rebounding.

The Cavalier's best weapon was the full-court press and it was the press that was responsible for clipping the big Cardinals leads.

Pocono managed only one more field goal than the Cavaliers, but East Stroudsburg scored on only six of 11 foul shots, while Pocono bagged 15 of 28 foul tries.

The Cavaliers made their biggest rush at the beginning of the fourth period. Trailing 47-31 at the start of the last period, East Stroudsburg scored six straight points in the first two minutes to cut the spread to 47-37.

The lead stayed at about 10 for three minutes and with 3:20 left, Wescott hit a long push shot to make it 52-44, the closest the Cavaliers had been since the second period.

But by that time Pocono had solved the Cavalier press and the Cardinals played possession ball in the final minutes.

Pocono won the junior varsity game easily, 37-21.

EMMAUS — Emmaus High used a full-court press the entire game in handing Stroud Union an 89-55 Lehigh Valley League loss Tuesday.

The Mounties were never in contention and except for the opening period, the closest Stroud Union came to the Green Hornets was 10 points.

It was the fifth straight league loss for the Mounties, who have not won a league game.

Emmaus used seven players in the game, with five of them hitting for double figures.

Landis High
Tom Landis was the top scorer, with 11 field goals and four fouls, for 26 points. Ed Schantzenbach

State Judge Woodside In Governor Bid

HARRISBURG (AP) — Judge Robert E. Woodside of State Superior Court is in the race for the Republican nomination for governor.

Woodside, 57, announced his candidacy yesterday, declaring in a statement:

"Our citizens need a governor with knowledge and experience befitting this high office. To the task I bring my experience and my zeal for a better Pennsylvania. I urge every Republican and every citizen to join me in this crusade."

The jurist, from Millersburg, Dauphin County, joins Elkins Wetherill, Montgomery County commissioner; Sen. George N. Wade, R-Cumberland; Walter Altschuler, Philadelphia, a former U.S. attorney, and former state Rep. John Stewart Jr., of Philadelphia as announced GOP candidates.

Woodside reportedly has substantial backing from many county GOP organizations. He said he would resign from the Superior Court "at an appropriate time."

He was sought by Republican leaders in 1958 as candidate to run against Gov. Lawrence, then mayor of Pittsburgh. He declined the nomination which went to Reading pretzel manufacturer Arthur T. McGonigle, a political unknown.

Lawrence won the election by 62,000 votes and the margin led Republicans to speculate whether they would have won with a seasoned candidate.

Woodside served as a member of the House from Dauphin County in five regular and six special sessions of the legislature and was Republican floor leader in two sessions.

Marine Held In Robbery

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A 19-year-old Marine Corps private was arrested by the FBI yesterday on a charge of robbing a branch of the Union National Bank in Stroudsburg, Pa., of $29,910 Wednesday.

Hayes married a 17-year-old girl in Pittsburgh the morning of the robbery. Thomas E. Bishop, FBI agent in charge, said, They left Pittsburgh the day after the robbery.

The young Marine was being transferred from Camp Lejeune, N. C., to Camp Pendleton. He was arrested in a hotel room at Ocean-side, outside the camp. He told jail officials that his bride was staying in a Los Angeles apartment.

Bishop said that $28,495 of the stolen money had been recovered by the FBI in Pittsburgh and $505 from Hayes' Ocean-side hotel room.

The Marine used a .22 caliber rifle and his companion a pistol in the holdup, the FBI said.

Lehigh Names New Officials

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Three new vice presidents have been named at Lehigh University in what was described as a major administrative reorganization.

Dr. Glenn J. Christensen was advanced from dean of the college of arts and science to vice president and provost.

Dr. Charles A. Seidle, director of admission, was promoted to vice president for administration.

Dr. Paul J. Franz Jr., assistant to the president, was made vice president in charge of development and public relations.

Dr. Harvey A. Neville, president, explained that the changes came about, first, because of his own elevation to the presidency from vice president-provost, and second, because the administrative vice presidency became vacant when Dr. E. Kenneth Smiley was given an indefinite leave of absence for health reasons. The third vice presidency is new.
